BIOCOMM Speaker Guidelines

A successful BIOCOMM conference depends largely on the open sharing of knowledge and demonstration of skills that have been developed while working in the field of biocommunications and stands as the hallmark of the BioCommunications Association, Inc. (BCA).

Purpose of the Conference

BIOCOMM is the annual international symposium of the BCA for the presentation of a scientific and educational program.

Audience

Attendees are users and producers of visual communications media in medicine and the life sciences. They may be specialists in photography, computer graphics or motion media, or managers of media departments. Typically, they are employed by hospitals, medical centers, universities, research institutes, pharmaceutical companies, and forensic departments, or they may run their own business. Attendees may be new to the field, or experienced professionals.

Education

Attendees seek to enhance their professional knowledge and competency through the sharing of both emerging and current technologies and/or processes. The scientific program and workshops of BIOCOMM are expected to meet this need.

Role of the Speaker

Your presentation should provide the attendee with a learning experience in specialized knowledge and/or skills that are difficult to find elsewhere. Information you present should be timely, relevant, and meet the objectives of the annual meeting. Your knowledge of, and enthusiasm for, your subject should be apparent.

Attendee/Speaker Interaction

BIOCOMM attendees are an engaged and inquisitive audience and seek every opportunity to interact informally with speakers, as well as with each other. Speakers should make themselves available to answer quick questions, or arrange a later time for further discussion. Handouts are greatly appreciated.

Educational Format

Plenary

Presentations are intended to address the entire group of attendees. Topics should be something of interest for everyone in attendance. Each topic is covered in 20-45 minutes.

InfoShare

Presentations of general interest on new equipment, materials, or processes. Each topic is covered in 3-7 minutes.

Show us Your Stuff

A collection of short presentations that explains how a photograph was acquired. Each topic is covered in 15 minutes.

Current Trends

A collection of presentations of general or special interest on emerging trends identified within a geographic region, specialty, or software utilization. Each topic is covered in 10 to 20 minutes.

Workshop

Presentations are intended to be interactive, hands-on skill-building classes that may be combined with instructional content. Attendance affords the enrollees with an unparalleled opportunity for gaining direct, practical knowledge and/or experience relevant to the needs of producers and users of visual communications media. Workshops require extensive preparation by the speaker. Presenters are facilitators, enabling participants to share questions and ideas with their peers. Sessions are typically held in blocks of 1.5 and 3 hours.

Policies

Speakers are not added to the program at the meeting. Potential presenters must fill out a Call for Participation Abstract form and submit it by the posted deadline. Speakers do not receive honoraria, lodging, or travel expenses and pay the registration fee which corresponds to their membership category. The presentation is construed as a contribution to the profession and the BCA.

To conserve costs, the BCA requests speakers to provide their own materials. In the event the speaker requires materials, advance approval for reimbursement must be obtained from the Program or Workshop Chair. Any unused materials for which reimbursement has been approved become the property of the BCA.

Speakers should check-in with their moderator at least 30 minutes before the session starts. It is highly recommended to make arrangements to preview your digital presentation ahead of time on the equipment being used for the session or workshop.
